NEWS FLASH

Greetings Delegates

Since you were introduced to Amy Scott at the Small Town Conference held in Kaiapoi last September, Amy has been 'busily dotting' individuals, businesses, organisations, conferences and communities throughout New Zealand and Australia. We are delighted to advise that we, Conference & Events Professionals, have been appointed as Amy's New Zealand agent.

The exciting feature of this relationship is that Amy continues to focus on what she is exceptionally good at with dotting and delighting people and we, Conference & Events Professionals get to do what we are best at organising and managing.

We are thrilled to be representing Amy and to be helping her by managing her bookings. Her calendar is filling fast for 2010 and we are aware that many councils and organisations have expressed an interest in working with Amy in their organisations and communities.

If you are keen to have Amy excite, delight and inspire your people with "Get Dotted!", the incredible communication tool, I invite you to contact us at the address below.

When people have an understanding of their own and of others communication styles, there is a huge decrease of stress. It's not rocket science, it is "Get Dotted!"

Using the dots removes the personal element to any miscommunication – for example "why is he/she being so blunt and rude" can turn around to "Remember he/she is a red dot". Amy has been in organisations where she has actually heard someone say "Can you be a little less purple in our next meeting?". Obviously this is a nicer way of telling someone, talk less (rather than getting frustrated and/or telling them to shut up!) and more effective.

Recent feedback includes:

"Having been on many communication courses I have found this by far the best"

"Everything about the programme was excellent and fun, Amy's a brilliant and very passionate presenter"

For further information please see the documents attached and if you would like to discuss bookings or have any queries regarding Amy's presentations we would be very pleased to assist.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards
Suzanne Carson
